LAUREN GEOGHEGAN

Lauren was born on September 27, 1988. Her first home was in south Glendale, at 715 E Cypress St. Before she turned two, she moved to northwest Glendale. As a little girl Lauren attended Grandview Presbyterian church and the Brethren Coop Nursery School. Her favorite place to go was Brand Park where she enjoyed playing on the equipment, playing hide and seek among the trees, tag, having picnics, and in summer, going to the wading pool. She also began her AYSO soccer interest at age four, practicing at brand Park!

Lauren went to Mark Keppel Elementary School from kindergarten through 5th grade. At Keppel, she joined the drill team, and performed in the first Stepping Stone Player's production of the Wizard of Oz. During this time, she continued playing AYSO soccer in the Glendale league, was part of the Falcon swim classes at Crescenta Valley High School during the summer, and was part of a Glendale girl scout troop. She was baptized at the First United Methodist church of Glendale and was part of the children's choir as well as helped with vacation bible school. During these years Brand Park continued to be an important part of her life as she enjoyed playing with her sisters at the park, taking family hikes, and numerous classes- dance, art and chess.

In sixth grade, she transferred to Immaculate Heart Middle School and then to Immaculate Heart High School where she pursued her interest in drama. Lauren's last AYSO soccer season was in the ninth grade when she decided to devote herself solely to drama. She was in every drama production, fall and spring, all four years at IH. During the summer, she volunteered at Glendale Adventist Hospital in their childcare program. Throughout high school, she was active in her church youth group. Lauren graduated from Immaculate Heart High School at the Hollywood Bowl in June of 2006.

Her first summer after high school graduation, she volunteered for the Honorable Adam B. Schiff, and worked at J. Crew's Pasadena store before leaving for her first year at Georgetown University in Washington DC.
